Omaha 9, Denver 6. The Omahas and Denvers played the closing game of their first series on the local grounds yesterday aftergoon in the presence of a fair-sized crowd. Comaha won, although things looked blue in the ninth inning, and the crowd sat mute and trembling, fearing a repetition of Sunday's calamity A little good fortune averted this result, and with a long breath of satisfaction the crowd dispersed.

Both sides scored in the first. Omaha on a base on balls, a stolen base, a hit and a sac-rifice, and Denver by Dalrymple's home run over the right field fence.

It was a succession of goose eggs then up to the fourth, when Omaha took a lead of four runs.

And this is the way they did it.

Cannvan went to first on balls, stole second and reached third on a wild throw by Dolan. Andrews went out from Klusman to Rowe, but on Wills' beautiful single, Canavan galloped home. Willis went went to second on a passed ball and Messitt took first on four wide pitches. By a daring run, Willis stole third and Jack second, and both came home on Oleveland's single. Grover followed suit a moment after on Strauss' safe hit, Joe reaching third on the throw in to catch Cleveland. Grooks then made a hit and Cooney got his base on balls, but no more runs were made, Strauss being forced out at second by Walsh's grounder, and Canavan retiring on a high foul.

The seventh yielded two more runs for Omaha on a single, a base on balls and errors by McQuaid and Silch. Again, in the ninth, Omaha scored twice, again on a single hit, a couple of steals, a base on balls and a brace of errors.

It was naught but blanks for the Mountaineers up to the last innings, when on two hits and a ludicrous concatenation of errors by Cleveland, Willis and Messitt, they suc-

by Cleveland, Willis and Messitt, they succeeded in getting five men across the plate.
Willis pitched a great game, as the score shows, and won a creditable victory.
The umpiring of Cusick was the vilest ever seen on the home grounds, and the opinion appears to be universal that he is totally unfit for the position he so wofully essays

Horses vs. Bleycles. There was a crowd of probably 1,500 people assembled at the Coliseum last evening to witness the start in the six-day race, equestriennes against bicycliennes, and at intervals throughout the struggle the enthusiasm ran high. Misses Williams and Reber, the horsewomen, were jauntily attired in light waists and black tights, and made a picturesque spectacle as they dashed 'around the arens. The 'cyclers-Beauty Baldwin, Kittle Brown, Lily Williams and Louise Armaindo-were each greeted with cheers as they made their appearance successively upon the track. The quartette were in high spirits, and did some famous riding, averaging nearly sixteen miles to the hour through out the evening.

The cyclinnes were not long in demon-The cyclinnes were not long in demonstrating their superiority over the quadrupeds, for at the close of the evening's session they had a vantage of nearly six miles. This Marve Beardsley, the trainer of the horsewomen, declared was on account solely of the heavy condition of the track. This fault will be remedied, however, to-day, and to-night they expect to regain their lost ground. There is no doubt but what this ground will increase in excitement and interest ace will increase in excitement and interest as it progresses and a great crowd will be on hand to-night, Following is the score:

HEAVY LOSS BY FIRE.

Many Business Houses and Residences at Reno, Nev., Destroyed.

RENO, Nev., May 27 .- A fire started yesterday afternoon in the old theater building ust opposite the depot hotel. It soon burned the hotel and six other houses, and the offices near, and then in succession destroyed the Pioneer hotel, Lafayette house, Pollard house and Pyramid bouse. The N. & C. depot was partially consumed. On Center street the fire broke out again and destroyed five business houses and ten residences. In one block every building but residences. In one block every building but one is in ashes. The fire in another direction burned the roundhouse and turntable for the Central Pacific, two houses and one cement house. The Silver State flouring mills were next consumed, and after that the Fogus flouring mills. It is impossible to secure a correct list of the losses, but they will be between $250,000 and $300,000. The insurance amounts to about $125,000.

CLEVELAND BANQUETTED.

Young Men's Democratic Club of New York Entertain Him. NEW YORK, May 27 .- The Young Men's Democratic club of this city extended a banquet of welcome to ex-President Cleveland, at the Fifth avenue hotel, this evening. Nearly five hundred of the leaders of the democratic party were present. The cheers were long and loud when the ex-president entered the banquet hall. He submitted to the handshaking of the guests for an hour before taking his seat at the table. Cleveland was aressed in sombre black. There was more of the glow of health in his face than at the time he retired from the presidency. He appeared in the best of spirits. All the factions of democracy were represented at the banquet.

When the presiding officer introduced Mr. Cleveland there was a furore of appliause which threatened to overstep all bounds, When quiet was finally restored Mr. Cleveland began his speech. He said: "Many incidents of my short residence in this good city have served to fill my cup of gratitude and to srouse my appreciation of the kindness and consideration of those with whom I have made my home. The hospitality for which the citizens of New York have long been distinguished, has out-York have long been distinguished, has outdone itself in my welcome, and yet I can truly say that none of these things will be more vividly or gratefully remembered than the opportunity afforded me by this occasion to greet the political friends I see about me.

While I believe no one is more susceptible than I am of every personal kindness, and while I am sure no one values more his personal friendship, it certainly should cause no surprise when I say these things are not more cherished than my attachment and loyalty to the true democratic faith and my obligations to the cardinal principles of its party organizations. I have been honored by my party far beyond my deserts. Indeed, its party organizations. I have been honored by my party far beyond my deserts. Indeed, no man can deserve its highest honors. After six years of public service I return to you, my party friends. Six years have I stood as your representative in state and nation, and now I take my place again in the ranks more convinced than ever that the cause of true democracy is the cause of the people, their safeguard and their hope. I come to you with no excuses or apologies and with no confession of disloyalty. It is not given to man to meet all the various and conflicting views of his party duty and policy which prevail in an organization where individual opinion is so freely tolerated as in the democratic party, and yet when they are honestly held and advocated they should provoke no bitterness or condemnation, but when they are dishonestly proclaimed, as a mere cover and precondemnation, but when they are dishon-estly proclaimed, as a mero cover and pre-text for personal resontment and disappoint-ment, they should be met by the exposure and contempt which they deserve. No man can lay down the trust which he has held in behalf of a generous and confiding people and feel that at all times he has met in the best possible way the requirements of his trust, but he is not direlict in duty if he has conscientiously devoted his efforts, and his trust, but he is not direlict in duty if he has conscientiously devoted his efforts and his judgment to the people's service.

"I have deliberately pisced in close connection loyalty to democratic principles and devotion to the interests of the people—for, in my view, they belong together, and should mean the same thing, but in this day of partisan feeling and attachment it is well for us to pause and recall the truth that the only justification for the existence of any party is the claim that in principle and performance its object and purposes are the promotion of the public good, and the advancement of the welfare and prosperity of the entire country. There never was a party platform or declaration of principles which did not profess these things and make them the foundations of a party creed, and any body of men who these things and make them the foundations of a party creed, and any body of men who should openly proclaim they were associated together for the express purpose of gaining supremacy in the government with the sentment of distributing the offices and spoils of victory among their associates would be treated with ridicule and scorn. Thus are we brought face to face with the proposition that parties should no more than individuals be untruthful and dishonest. Of course, in the supremacy of a party there are advantages to its acy of a party there are advantages to its members, and this is not amiss. But when high party aims and professions are lost sight of or abandoned, and the benefit of office holding and personal solf are all that remain to inspire party activity, not only is the confidence of those relied on for patriotic support forfeited, but elements of cohesion and of effective and lasting political

The honest difference of opinion that must always exist upon questions of principle and public policy should furnish abundant occa sion for the existence of parties and point out their field of usefulness.

When we seek for the cause of the perpetuity of the democratic party and its survival through every crisis and emergency and in the face of all opposition, we find it in the fact that its corner store is laid in devotion to the rights of the people and in sympath, with all things which tend to the advancenent of their welfare and happiness. The heresy may have sometimes crept into its organization, and though party conduct may at times have been influenced by the shifti-ness which is the nabitual device of its opponents, there has always remained deeply imbedded in its nature and character, that spirit of true Americanism and that love of popular rights which has made it indestructible in disaster and defeat and has contributed it a boon to its country in its time of triumph and supremacy. Happily the party creed which we profess is not within such narrow lines that obedience does not permit us to move abress with the adnot permit us to move abreast with the ad-vanced thought of the country and to meet and test every question and apply principle to every situation. "True democracy, staunch in its adhesion to fundamental doctrine, is at the same time in a proper sense progressive.

"True democracy honestly advocates a national brotherhood, to the end that all our fellow countrymen may aid in the achievement of the grand destiny which awaits us as a nation, and it condemns that pretext of liberality and harmony which when partisan advantage is to be gained, gives way to in-flammatory appeals to sectional hate and passion. It does not favor the multiplication of offices and salaries merely to make par-tisans, nor the use of promise and bestowal of place for the purpose of stilling the press and bribing the people. It seems to lighten the burden of life in every home and to take from the citizens for the cost of government, the lowest-possible tribute.

"We know we have expoused the cause or right and justice. We know we have not permitted duty to the country to wait upon expedience. We know we have not trafficked our principles for success. We know we have not deceived the people with false promises and pretenses, and we know we have not corrupted nor betrayed the poor with the money of the rich. Who shall say these things promise no reward and that triumph shall not follow the enlightened judgment and soher second thought of our countrymen. from the citizens for the cost of government,

"There are to-day no weak, weary and countrymen. "There are to-day no weak, weary and despondent members of true democracy, and there should be none. Thought-ful attention to political topics is thoroughly aroused. Events are day by day leading men to review the reasons for their hasty affiliations, and supporters of principles are constantly recruited by intelligent, young and sturdy adherents. Let us deserve their confidence, and support and deserve their confidence. deserve their confidence, and shunning all ignoble practices, let us remain steadfast to democratic faith and to the cause of our country. If we are true and loyal to these, the day of our triumph will surely and quickly come and our victory shall be fairly and nobly won through the invincible spirit of true democracy." of true democracy.'

Hearing Before the Inter-State Commerce Association. COMPLAINT, FROM BOSTON.

The Difference in Cost of Handling Live Stock and Dressed Meats-The Alton's Lumber Bokick.

Transporting Meats Eastward. CHICAGO, May 27 .- | Special Telegram to FIR BER. |-The hearing in the rate cases on live hogs and the dressed beef products began this morning in the Palmer house be fore the inter-state commerce commission The hearing was the result of complaints made by John P. Squire, of Boston, and the Chicago board of trade, charging discrimina tion against the railroads, in that they made higher rates on live hogs than on the dressed products. The complaints being practically the same, it was at first decided to hear the cases together.

Chairman Cooley, Colonel Morrison and General Bragg were the members of the commission present. Judge Wilson, of Boston, appeared for John P. Squire; Judge Sidney Smith and J. E. Monroe for the Chicago board of trade; Cummins & Wright for the fowa packers, and Gage, Ladd & Small for the Kansas City packers.

The John P. Squire case was first on the docket, Judge Wilson opening for the plaintiff. This case was against the Chicago east-bound and trunk line roads. Judge Wilson opened his case by stating that he would prove the following propositions:

1. Live hogs can, and should be, transported at less rate than dressed product.
2. The rate on dressed hogs should at least be the same as dressed beef. The rate on dressed hogs should be at east as nigh as that on live hogs.
 The rate on live cattle is, and should be,

less than that on dressed beef.
Judge Smith opened for the board of trade and made the general statement particular-ized in the formal complaint that the present rates on live hogs were higher from Missouri river and Iowa points than on the cressed product. The formal complaint was then read.

Mr. Cummins, of Cummins & Wright, opened for the Iowa packers by saying, he intended to prove the following: The present rates have been in effect for wenty years.
 Chicago packers are at no disadvantage

n account of the present rates.

3. There is no disproportion in the rates. 4. The rates are now equitably established.
Paul Morton, general freight agent of the Burlington, testified in substance that it costs as much to run refrigerator as live stock cars, or more. There is as much risk in transporting dressed meat as in transporting live stock. In case of wrack, if total in transporting dressed meat as in transporting live stock. In case of wreck, if total, the dressed meat loss would be higher. Ordinarily the loss might be less. Salt and ice used on dressed beef are transported free.
The Burlington owned aboutone-third of the refrigerator cars.run on its line. For those not owned, the Burlington and all western roads paid a cent a mile both ways to the owners, as mileage, At the present time about two-thirds of the live stock cars go back empty. Sometimes hardly any went back empty. Sometimes hardly any went back empty. On cross-examination Mr. Morton said that he did not know any lowa packers who owned refrig-erator cars. Almost any Burlington engine erator cars. Almost any Burlington engine could haul sixteen or seventeen loaded refrigerator cars. In weighing live hogs 500 pounds is deducted from the net weight to give shippers the benefit of the doubt. He could not say what proportion of live hogs die in transit. Less die since the weighing system went into effect, as shippers load cars much lighter. The average weight of a car load of hogs is 17,000 pounds; that of a car of packing-house products was about 2,800. The cost of unloading a car of live hogs is very slights.

hogs is very slighter at At the afternoon session the witnesses were Superintendent Becler, of the Burling ton; Car Accountant Lure, of the North-western; Mr. Dee, of the Chicago Packing and Provision company; Chairman Moore, of Chicago Car Service association, and out that the delay in unloading live stock cars was much less than that of dressed meat cars. That at present there was about the same risk in transporting live nogs and cattle, and that live stock cars cost about $450 and refrigerator cars about $850.
Chairman Walker's decision on the application of the Alton road to reduce the Missouri river lumber rate from sixteen to ten cents, was not ready for publication today. It was learned that it would refuse the application. General Manager Chappell, of the Alton, said the decision would make no difference and that notice would be given mmediately to the inter-state commerce com nission that the ten cent rate would be made.

The Burlington will, next Sunday, put passenger trains on the Creston and Rio branches. These trains were taken off last Doing the Bribing Act. NEW YORK, May 27 .- It is understood that the commission, while in Chicago, will make inquiry into the case of a prominent cattle shipper, who several months ago bribed one of the agents of the Western Railway Weighing association, at the stock yards, to pass a shipment of live stock at less than the pass a snipment of two stock at less than the actual weight. It transpires that the facts in the matter are in possession not only of the inter-state commerce commission, but also of the United States district attorney.

The city has been grading at that point. Two other men were buried under the dirt, but will recover.

WILL THE SCABS STRIKE. Rumors That They Have Made Overtures to the Brotherhood, It was rumored last night that the scale engineers on the Burlington road had requested the order of the Brotnerhood of Locomotive Engineers to join them in a general strike throughout the west, and, as the report comes from a reliable source, it is doubtlessly authentic.

Their grievances are expressed in general terms, and no particular specific charges are made. They allege that officials of the road have not dealt with them in good faith and that the promises given them were only made to be broken.

The question of the projected strike was laid before local members of the B. O. L. E. last night. M. C. Parr, a prominent member of the brotherhood, said that he had heard nothing of the matter at all. As far as the scabs appealing to them for as-

As far as the scabs appealing to them for assistance was concerned, he considered it nonsense. While the brotherhood would not consent to go back on the B. & M. unless the officials of the road first signed their schedule, they would not, on the other hand, raise a finger to assist the men who had taken their jobs. Still, the brotherhood would do nothing to injure the men, realizing that poverty can drive a man to almost anything.

"No brotherhood man," said he, "will ever take the place of a scab. I think the whole thing is a big fake." As far as the scabs appealing to them for as-

When the democratic committee met the suggestion was made that a committee be sent to the republican meeting and suggest sent to the republican meeting and suggest the nomination of a non-partisan ticket. This met with general approval, and a committee consisting of Julius Meyer, J. B. Evans, Jeff Megeath, N. M. Palmer and Charles Connoyer, was named. They visited the republican committee, but the proposition was rejected after speeches by Fred Behm, Morris Morrison, Charles Unitt and Dr. Saville. They severally claimed that the members elected should know by whom and for what they were nominated. Dr. Mercer and M. O. Maul favored the suggestion, but without avail. Each convention then proceeded to name a date for the holding of the primaries and convention. The republicans will hold their primaries between the hours of 12 m. and 7 p. m., Friday, May 31, and the convention at the council chamber on Saturday, June 1. Norton Gets a Divorce. St. Louis, May 17 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. |- John W. Norton, the well-known theatrical manager, was to-day granted a divorce from Emma A. Norton, his wife, who eloped from St. Louis with Henry Moore, the then managing editor of the Post-Dispatch, about a year ago. The case was quietly disposed of, and attracted less attention than was expected. Referring to the separation of Moore and Mrs. Nerton in New York, Mr. Norton said he was disinclined to believe all the allegations against the woman, and was firmly convinced that Moore was the original cause of Mrs. Nor-

BUFFALO BILL'S FATHER. Frontiersman Whom the Indians

Looked on as an Evil Spirit. or two since related an incident of the original "Buffato Bill" Cody, father of the present showman, which has never been in print and is worthy of a place in the News. Old man Cody was a prominent figure on the plains in an early day, being the owner of an extensive trading post on the Arkansas, in the vicinity of old Fort Larned, says the Denver News. Late in the '50s he received information that the Indians proposed to clean out his ranch, which was an extensive adobe building surrounded by a stockade. He did not pay much attention to it, but the same news continued to reach him, and was at last confirmed by the arrival of a large band of Cheyenne and Arapahoes and Kiowas, who camped on the opposite side of a deep arroya from the trading post, across which the military authorities had erected a bridge for the passage of supply trains. savages pretended to be very friendly and wanted to trade, swapping furs and skins for ammunition, but their real object was to burn the post and carry off Cody's scalp as a trophy—a fact of which the old frontiersman was well informed through the spies whom he had among them. The place was well armed, but not sufficiently manned to resist the attack of so formidable a band of red skins, and Old Bill cast about to see what he could do to protect himself. In the stockyard of the fort was an old howitzer, which had been abandoned by some of the plains mili-tary expeditions, and this he carried up to the top of the post and placed it that it would sweep the bridge. He had plenty of powder, but no other ammunition fit to load it with, and so he charged the gun with old mule shoes,

The cannon loaded he awaited devel-opments. Early one morning he observed an unusual movement in the camp of his pretended friends, and soon, fully armed and with war paint on, the savages made a dash toward the fort. Cody was at his hovitzer, match in hand. The painted devils crowded the long but narrow bridge, and just as the foremost reached the nearest bank he discharged his gun at clear range of the bridge. There was a wild howl of disappointed rage, a vision of dead Indians tumbling into the arroya, of legs and arms and heads lying around loose without claimants, and fleeing and frightened savages escaping from the fatal bridge. Cody's single shot had saved his post, and he was always thereafter left in peaceful possession of his ranch. Just what struck them on the bridge the Indians never knew, and the survivors of the fatal charge always entertained the firm belief that Buffalo Bill was in league with the evil spirit, and, as such, a person to whom it was safe to give a wide berth.
